ABOUT THE PROGRAM

The drawing is an essential bridge between designer and manufacturer and also between the designer and commissioning/maintenance engineer. An electrical engineer can analyze and design electrical equipments like transformers, DC machines, induction machines, synchronous machines and electrical power system elements comprising of transmission lines, circuit breakers, transformers, reactors, capacitors etc. Computer Aided Electrical drawing (CAED) subject is introduced in the engineering curriculum of VTU, Belgaum in 2010-2014 scheme of syllabus. Program will provide complete insight for the subject included in the VTU curriculum and hands on practice provide the tips to use the software to develop the drawing in short time. AutoCAD is general purpose program that one can tailor for their academic and industrial need.

COURSE CONTENT:

1. Introduction of use of various tools and basic commands of AutoCAD
2. Development of single line diagram of power plant and substation
3. Developing the AC and DC machine windings
4. Developing the plan and elevation of Core and Shell types of Transformer
5. Drawing of DC / AC machine parts & assembly
